Where having eat and drank your fill,
Should ye (O hapless case!)
Neglect to pay your landlord's bill,
DEATH stares you in the face!

I.
By Death is taken in.
O! stop not here, ye foolish wights,
For pul'nture, make, or gun,
For if you do, where are you?

III.
With grief sincere I pity those
Who've drawn themselves this scrape in;
Since from this dreadful gripe, Heaven knows,
Alas! there's no escaping!

IV.
You'll surely—drink to DEATH!
Never pledge your host; for if you do,
Whilst yet yee life and breath,
This one advice, my friends, pursue,
